7 pm - Wednesday, November 14, 2018

From different vantage points William Stixrud PhD and Ned Johnson saw kids struggling with a lack of motivation, a lack of ambition and toxic stress. Stixrud is a clinical neuropsychologist who helps kids gripped by anxiety or struggling to learn. Johnson is a motivational and educational coach, founder of a elite tutoring company PrepMatters and author of "Conquering the SAT." In this ground breaking presentation parents will learn compassionate, concrete solutions to help students deal with competitive academics/extracurriculars and feelings of hopelessness. We will discuss social media, today's common stressors and learn the well supported, simple strategies to move children of all ages from powerlessness to purpose, supported and ready to take on new challenges on the real road to success.

These programs are free and open to the public.
